

Technology helps family keep in touch with soldier

posted: 06-18-2005

A local bank shows its' support for the troops through technology. They're helping families stay in touch with loved ones in Iraq.

Ouachita Independent Bank set up video-conferencing equipment to allow families to see and hear each other this weekend.

Staff Sergeant Verna Clinton's relatives drove over from Monroe to share a few laughs, some smiles and tears of joy. Seeing his sister inspired Stanley Reed to send his greetings through a special song.

The video hook ups were made possible through the Freedom Calls Foundation. The equipment was donated by the Tandberg Corporation.